National Day of Mourning / Day of Respect Declared

President George W. Bush has declared June 11 a National Day of Mourning/Day of Respect to honor our 40th president, Ronald Reagan, who died June 5. In terms of staffing levels and hours of operation, the 6th Area Support Group will treat this day as a holiday. Thus, only "mission essential" functions (food, fire, security, IOC, emergency service order crew, health, safety, etc.) will remain open and will be staffed at minimum levels, as determined by directorate heads. All operations not deemed mission essential will be closed.

For pay and leave purposes, please note the following. For active-duty and U.S. civilian employees, June 11 is designated as a holiday and will be treated as such for employees who are required to work on that day. Excused U.S. employees (both AF and NAF) will not be charged leave June 11, even if leave was previously scheduled for that day. For local national employees, June 11 will be a day of "excused absence." LN employees who are scheduled to work that day will be excused without charge to leave. (However, in order to be excused, an LN employee must have been scheduled for duty that day. Therefore, an LN employee on previously authorized or scheduled leave for a period including June 11 will still be charged leave for that day.) LN employees who are classified "mission essential" and must work that day will be paid at the normal (not holiday) rate, and will not be entitled to an excused absence at a later date.
